BY-LAWS, ARTICLE II: PRINCIPLES AND OBJECTIVES

[a] A prime objective of the Association will be to instruct children in cooperation with the home as creatures of God in such a manner to equip them for living the Christian life as members of the Christian community in contemporary society.

[b] The basis of the Association is the Old and New Testaments of the Holy Bible, the infallible Word of God, as summarized in the Apostles' Creed and interpreted by Our World Belongs to God: A Contemporary Testimony. (The Association is not an ecclesiastical body nor is it subject to any ecclesiastical organization. It is governed by its members.)

[c] The organization is committed to the following basic principles for Christian education:

The Bible. That God by His Holy Word reveals Himself; renews our understanding of God, of ourselves, of our neighbors, and of the world; directs us in all our relationships and activities; and, therefore, guides us also in the education of our children.

Creation. That in their education children must come to learn that the world, and their call in it, can rightly be understood only in their relation to the Triune God, who by His creation, restoration, and governance directs all things to the coming of His kingdom and the glorification of His name.

Sin. That sin brought upon all people the curse of God, alienating us from our Creator, our neighbor, and the world. Sin thus distorts our view of the true meaning and purpose of life, misdirects human culture, and also affects the education of children.

Jesus Christ. That through our Savior, Jesus Christ, there is renewal of our educational enterprise because He is the Redeemer of, and the Light and the Way for, our human life in all its range and variety. Only through Him and the work of His Spirit are we guided in the truth and recommitted to our original calling.

Schools. That the purpose of Christian schools is to educate children for a life of obedience to their calling in this world as image-bearers of God; that this calling is to know God's Word and His creation, to consecrate the whole of life to God, to love one another, and to be stewards of God's world.

Parents. That the primary responsibility for education rests upon parents to whom children are entrusted by God, and that Christian parents should accept this obligation in view of the covenantal relationship which God established with believers and their children. They are encouraged to discharge this obligation through school associations and school boards which engage the services of Christian teachers in Christian schools.

Teachers. That Christian teachers, both in obedience to God and in cooperation with parents, have a unique pedagogical responsibility while educating the child in school.

Students. That Christian schools must take into account the variety of abilities, needs, and responsibilities of young persons; that the endowments and calling of young persons as God's image-bearers and their defects and inadequacies as sinners require that such learning goals and curricula will be selected as will best prepare them to live as obedient Christians; and that only with constant attention to such pedagogical concerns will education be truly Christian.

Community. That because God's covenant embraces not only parents and their children but also the whole Christian community to which they belong, and because Christian education contributes directly to the advancement of God's kingdom, parents and the Christian community are encouraged to establish and maintain Christian schools, to pray for them, work for them, and to contribute generously toward their support.

Educational Freedom. That Christian schools, organized and administered in accordance with legitimate standards and provisions for day schools, should be fully recognized in society as free to function according to their principles.
